

Eleanor Johnson, an Early Years teacher, set out to create a resource which would make listening as easy as possible for children aged 3 to 7. She wanted a digital audio player that would be robust, durable and without wires.

The result was a totally original concept; StoryPhones, an MP3 digital audio system with a myriad of useful features. StoryPhones combines robust MP3 headsets, a loud-speaking MP3 player with recording facility and versatile software to manage player settings and your audio resource library.

To complete this digital audio solution Eleanor worked with many well known educational publishers to create BookShelf, the first MP3 download store for primary education.
